Maurer Acquitted by Grayling Jury On Game Law Violation Charge

A circuit court jury acquitted Bernard Maurer, Beaver Creek Township farmer, in Crawford County Circuit Court here Friday afternoon on charges of illegal possession of venison.

Maurer was found innocent on both charges brought against him by conservation officers by the 12-man jury that deliberated for more than two hours before returning its verdict.

The verdict cleared Maurer of charges of illegal possession of portions of 25 doe deer and illegal possession of portions of three black deer with antlers less than three inches long.

Crux of the defense was that Maurer himself did not kill the deer, but that they were killed by the owner of the farm, Dr. Bernard Godfrey, of Traverse City, under a permit he had.

Dr. Godfrey testified Thursday on his point at Maurer's trial. Dr. Godfrey said he owned the barn on the farm where game officers testified they found parts of carcasses of numerous deer.

Witnesses testified that deer killed by permit holders must be reported to conservation department.

Judge John C. Shaffer, in his instructions to the jury, stated that the defendant could be found guilty or not guilty. Nicholas V. Olds, assistant state attorney general, assigned to the conservation department, conducted the state's case assisted by Crawford County Prosecutor Robert F. Neafie.

Maurer's attorney was Frederick Van Fleten, of St. Clair Shores. There was no comment immediately following the not guilty verdict by any of the attorneys involved.

Maurer's circuit court trial followed an appeal from his conviction in justice court in 1948.

A jury in the court of Justice Emil Giegling found Maurer guilty on charges of illegal possession of venison on December 10, 1948.

Maurer was sentenced by Justice Giegling to serve 60 days in the county jail and to pay court costs of $19.50 on January 3, 1949.

Maurer's attorney filed an immediate appeal of the justice court conviction.

The case concluded here Friday was the result of this appeal.

Olds, following Maurer's conviction in justice court, filed on behalf of the conservation department a civil suit for damages totaling $5,000 for destruction of deer, the first suit of its kind involving game in the state.

The civil damage suit named both Maurer and Dr. Godfrey as defendants.

Neafie said Olds had indicated Friday afternoon following the not guilty verdict returned for Maurer in circuit court that the civil damage suit would be continued.

Olds contends the deer involved had a dollar and cents value in the field of recreation and is seeking the $5,000 damages for the state.

The civil suit is scheduled for the July term of circuit court.

Maurer's trial had aroused much interest among sportsmen and farmers throughout the state.

Twenty-nine men were called before the jury was selected with the defense using all of its preliminary challenges of five and the prosecution four of five.

Selected to serve on the jury were Harold Basmussen, Don Field, Frank Sawyer, Carl Easton, Bert Conter and Wesley Kumpulila, all of Grayling, Clell Myers, Riley Weiman and Wendlin Mantz, of Beaver Creek township; Charles Owens of Maple Forest township, George Horton of Frederic, and David Matthews of South Branch township.

As the hearing opened, the defense made a motion to dismiss the case and another to suppress evidence. Judge Shaffer denied both motions.

Senator Prescott To Seek Reelection

Charles T. Prescott, of Prescott, announced today he will be a candidate for re-election to the State Senate as a Republican from the twenty-eighth district on a platform of "no new taxes."

Senator Prescott strongly condemned the present administration's policy of what he termed the advocacy of irresponsible and loose spending by government agencies.

There is a limit to the amount of taxes the people of Michigan are willing to pay for government services," he said. "While we would all like to have the finest in state buildings, state agencies and state services, the people I have been privileged to represent agree we should not go into debt for them."

During his two terms, Senator Prescott has been a strong advocate of legislation benefitting the tourist industry and the development of Michigan's natural resources. He is presently chairman of the Senate Committee on Conservation and a member of the agriculture, public utilities and welfare committees.

A native of Michigan, Senator Prescott was born in Tawas City on October 1, 1884, and was graduated from Tawas City and Bay City schools before attending Western Reserve University.

American Legion Comes Through Again!

The American Legion was organized 31 years ago by a group of men who, having fought the first World War to victorious completion, envisioned patriotic American veterans as a powerful influence for good in this nation.

Throughout its 31 years of existence, The American Legion has recognized clearly the nature of Communism and its threat to all the free nations of the world.

Today, with much of America tardily awakening to the Red menace, our government's efforts to combat this alien conspiracy against us are nevertheless critically hampered by large segments of public opinion resulting from muddled thinking. Many a patriotic American has unconsciously absorbed so much of the clever propaganda of the Communists and their fellow-travelers that they either dismiss Communism as a harmless, crack-pot movement, or oppose measures that would restrict the effectiveness of the Reds as being "persecution for political beliefs."

Now the American Legion of Michigan comes forward with a sound program to stimulate informed thinking and action with reference to Communism.

The Pension Problem

In the long-range view, the most complex domestic issue that faces this country may be old age pensions.

Some of the labor organizations are now placing their principle emphasis on pensions as, for example, the coal and automobile unions. More will do so in the future. The general idea is to obtain retirement pensions of $100 monthly, social security benefits included.

However, regardless of what pension contracts are reached between union and industry, many authorities consider this an ineffectual solution of the problem. In mass industry there is a large turnover of labor—a man may work for a motor concern for a few months or a few years then move on to some other occupation. The size of the labor force varies from season to season.

That is why there is much sentiment in favor of government old age pensions which would cover everyone. Some argue that an inclusive and more liberal method of caring for the aged could be imposed upon the present social security system. But that is much easier said than done. At present Federal social security benefits to the elderly average less than $30 a month—a far cry from $100. Current proposals for raising the payment would still leave the average far short of $100. Social security is not on an actuarial basis. The government takes in the money through payroll taxes, spends it for other purposes, then appropriates more funds to meet requirements. No one knows how high the tax rate would have to be to produce $100 a month for everyone 65 and over.

To make the problem still tougher, the proportion of old people in our population will increase very heavily in coming years, due largely to medical progress. It has been estimated that, before too long, $100 pensions for those past 65 might absorb 25 per cent or more of the national payroll—and, naturally, the gainfully employed would have to pay it. The pension issue seems to be far from a workable solution.

DO UNTO PEDESTRIANS AS YOU'D HAVE THEM DO TO YOU. REMEMBER, YOU'RE OFTEN A PEDESTRIAN, TOO!

Being a good driver involves more than just obeying traffic laws. Thoughtfulness for the pedestrian should play a big part in your driving courtesy. Watch out for wet pavements. They make it so easy to splash that man in the serge suit—and one day you may be that man. Be just as careful about having the right insurance protection. We'll be glad to help you with insurance to suit your needs.

Look how you save with Dynaflo

FIRST thing you notice, of course, is the bother and effort Dynaflo Drive* saves.

Next, that Dynaflo saves you physically—after long trips you're less tense and tired, more relaxed.

But then, as the miles pile up—and this comes from cold, recorded fact after Dynaflo's two years of public operation—you spot savings you hadn't expected . . .

You save on tires—because power application is steady, even. On clutch expense—the usual friction clutch is gone.

You save on transmission maintenance, and the rear-axle expenses likely to go with it. And the way your engine is oil-cushioned against normal shocks and strains shows up in less engine upkeep.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

You may well discover another pleasant surprise, too.

We are getting a steadily mounting number of well-satisfied letters about gasoline mileage with Dynaflo cars.

The SPECIAL has shown some records little short of phenomenal. The SUPER is delivering mileage that compares most favorably with gear-shift cars. And the ROADMASTER more than holds its own with cars of its size and bulk.

In short, there's a lot more to please your budget in the 1950 Dynaflo than its new lower price. Refinements over the past two years result in savings that are sizable over the life of the car.

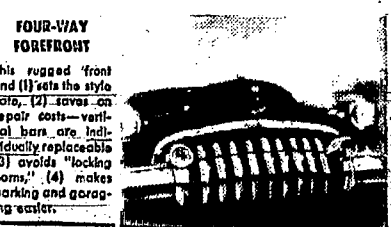

Knowing that, don't you want to demonstrate the big side of Dynaflo—the utter smoothness of America's first oil-does-it-all drive?

Only Buick has Dynaflo and with it goes: HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD front-end, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, clear-view road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube • WIDE ASSESSMENT OF MODELS with Buick by Fisher.

Matchless Team
and F-263

In the Buick beauty pictured here you can have both Dynaflo and Buick's very latest in power. For every 1950 SUPER has the F-263 engine, that fiery high-compression stepper that's the big power thrill of the season. Dynaflo Drive is optional equipment at extra cost.

FOUR-WAY FRONT
This rugged front end (1) sets the style; (2) takes on repair duty—vari-coil bars are individually replaceable; (3) avoids "locking horns"; (4) makes parking and garaging easier.

Absent: None.
Citizens present: Jerome Kessler, Jack Wade, Carl Strobel, Larry Galehouse, Leslie Hunter, Emil Giegling, Ralph Millikin, Alex Atkinson, Tony Nelson, H. Sorenson, Hanson and others.
Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Jerome Kessler of the Grayling Chamber of Commerce gave a talk on Park-O-Meters, as to taking a poll of whether or not most of the citizens are in favor of Park-O-Meters.

Mayor Roberts assured the audience that after six months fair trial, and if they were in disfavor then, they would be abandoned and would not have cost the City of Grayling anything. The Chamber of Commerce will co-operate with the City Council to make a survey on how many of the citizens are in favor of them before the six months trial period ends.

Jerome Kessler of the Chamber of Commerce asked the City Council to sponsor ten memberships to Chamber of Commerce in next year's budget. Also the Chamber wants permission to build a Chamber of Commerce building along US-27 on City property on the East side of street for benefit of North bound traffic.

Leslie Hunter of Chamber of Commerce wants help again in sponsoring 25% of the cost of more advertising County maps.

Jack Wade spoke against parking meters, along with the whole group present.

Moved by Gothro, supported by Roberts that the parking meter question be reconsidered.

Yeas: Roberts, Burke, Gothro, Tufts, Schoonover.

Nays: None.
Police Chief George Bielski reports 69 accidents of over $100 damage each during the past year, which hinged directly on crowded and poor parking conditions.

More discussion on parking meters as to whether or not parking meters would solve our parking situations and the hazardous conditions.

Moved by Burke, supported by Tufts to let the contract for the order of parking meters on the six months trial basis, stand as it is.

Yeas: Schoonover, Tufts, Burke. Nays: None.

Not voting: Gothro, Roberts. Moved by Burke, supported by Gothro that the attached parking meter ordinance be adopted.

Section 5. It shall be unlawful for any person to cause or permit any vehicle to be parked in any parking meter zone of said City contrary to the terms of this ordinance, and it shall be unlawful for any person to deposit in any parking meter any slug, device or metallic substitute for a coin of the United States, and any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not to exceed ten dollars and costs.

Section 6. Section 7. The fee required to be deposited in said meters is hereby levied as a police regulation and inspection fee to cover the cost of providing parking spaces, parking meters, the installation and maintenance thereof, the cost of regulation and inspection, the operation, control and use of the parking meter zones and spaces herein designated, and the regulation and control of traffic in the business area of said City.

Felix Retires

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

WHEN FELIX BRENDLINGER retired to private life he ceased to be a "figure" in Mayfield. If you took time to analyze the reason, the answer was simple.

For 30 years Felix had left his home on Pleasant street at exactly 7:35 in the morning, walked a quarter mile to the railroad station, boarded the 7:48 train for Longview, and spent the day in that distant city at a desk in the insurance offices of Booth, Gill and Dyer. Every evening he disembarked from the 5:52 train and traveled the quarter-mile to his Pleasant street home.

Mayfield citizens were used to the sight of Felix walking briskly to and from the railroad station. Sometimes some one would ask him to do an errand in Longview, and he'd always oblige. Frequently he would deliver choice bits of news to friends and acquaintances.

Booth, Gill and Dyer had for their clients two large steamship lines, and Felix could tell when the boats arrived in port, or when they were delayed by storms and when important personages were arriving from abroad.

There were a hundred and one things that Felix could and did do that achieved for him a certain recognition. After he retired, Felix ceased to be a figure. He wasn't an especially imaginative person, nor were his neighbors.

The neighbors knew unconsciously that Felix was no longer different from any of them. Felix knew it too. It troubled him. It hurt. It made him lonesome. It made him wonder. It threatened to develop in him an inferiority complex.

Felix tried hard to find pleasure in his retirement. He planted a garden and bought some chickens and occupied his time as much as he could. But it was a physical occupation, and this gave him plenty of opportunity to think. Eventually his thinking changed to brooding, and the brooding nourished the growing inferiority complex.

Felix's wife noticed the change. She tried to talk to him, to learn the source of his moodiness. But Felix couldn't explain it. He felt a little ashamed, and didn't want to talk.

Another month passed and Felix's wife began to think he was a case for the family doctor. Then one day a letter arrived from Booth, Gill and Dyer. They wanted to know if Felix would consider coming in for a few days to assist in straightening out some matters about which they considered him an expert.

"The idea," Felix's wife exclaimed, "Don't they know—but of course they don't—I'll write immediately and tell them how poor you are!"

"You'll do no such thing!" Felix exclaimed, eyes gleaming. "I'm catching the 7:48 in the morning!"

THE JOB lasted three weeks. During that time Felix became a figure once more. People began to use to him going back.

"You'll do no such thing!" Felix exclaimed, his eyes gleaming. "I'm catching the 7:48 in the morning."

to the train. Unconsciously they fell into the old routine of asking him to do errands and demanding choice bits of news. Felix was happy again. He beamed. He put on weight. He felt important. He was important.

On the day that Felix finished up the special work, Mr. Gill approached him.

"Felix, how about staying on with us awhile? You're not old enough to retire. We need you here."

"Need me?"

"As long as you'll stay. Oh, I realize that sooner or later we'll have to get along without your help—but none of us realized how important you were."

Felix's face glowed. "Thank you, Mr. Gill. You couldn't have said anything that would make me happier. But as far as staying with you is concerned—I'm afraid I'll have to turn down the offer. You see, I've got some chickens and a garden out home that need my attention. And—well—now I'll be able to retire with a clear conscience."

Early Michigan Fires Saw Red Cross To Rescue

As long as the "old folks" remember, and the "young folks" like to listen, tales will be told of the great fires which swept the Thumb district in Michigan in 1871 and again in 1881. But the great humanitarian movement which grew out of them will last even longer in the hearts of men.

In October, 1871, about the same time that Mrs. O'Leary's cow allegedly kicked up such a fuss in the thriving village of Chicago, great uncontrollable blazes swept Huron and Sanilac counties in Michigan leaving two-thirds of the population homeless.

An unusually dry summer and autumn set the stage for the conflagration which broke out on Sunday night, October 8, and left hundreds of acres of charred stumps where rich forests had stood. Few lives were lost, since the region was not thickly settled, but property damage was estimated to have reached hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The conflagration of '71, however, was only a prelude to the "great fire" of 1881, so devastating that its three days of horror lived in the memory of eyewitnesses for nearly 70 years. In 1846 an elderly man wrote this account from the memory: "Smoke had been dense all morning and the women had lighted kerosene lamps in the house. Toward noon, the wind suddenly became strong. I climbed up a ladder to the barn roof and saw fire rolling across the fields nearly a mile away. Fences were burning. I called out. Men rushed the threshing machine out of the barn, began tearing down fences, and putting pails of water on roofs of buildings. The neighbors could not go home to their own farms as we were entirely surrounded by fire. Although fire brands fell on the roofs many times, all our buildings were saved and were the only ones left standing for miles around. We children were sent into the church in need of neighborhood help as men wounded in war."

This man's family and their neighbors were among the first people in the county to see the banner of the Red Cross raised on behalf of homeless victims of disaster, for it was out of the great fire of 1881 that the Red Cross program of disaster relief was born. Clara Barton, then head of a small volunteer agency dedicated to the relief of suffering on the battlefield, saw that victims of disaster in time of peace were as much in need of neighborhood help as men wounded in war.

Destruction of the Thumb area was almost total. Clara Barton herself described it in these words: "So sweeping has been the destruction that there is not food enough left in its wake for a rabbit to eat, and, indeed, there is no rabbit if there were food." Nearly 300 Thumb residents died in the conflagration, while 3,437 buildings were destroyed and 14,438 persons left in need of the bare necessities of living.

As it has in more than 4,000 disasters since that time, the Red Cross went quickly to distribute food, clothing, medicines, seeds, and farm implements to help those who had lost everything.

Notice of farm acreage allotments for the 1950 crop of potatoes were mailed to commercial potato growers in Crawford County by the Crawford-Osago County PMA Committee on April 10, according to A. Gruszcynski, county PMA chairman.

Potato allotments are established as a basis for eligibility for price support and growers who plant in excess of their established 1950 potato acreage allotments will not be eligible for government price support assistance on their 1950 potato crop.

"We believe," Mr. Gruszcynski said, speaking for the county PMA committee, "that the allotments as finally determined represent the fairest possible distribution of the acreage available in the county allotment of 47 acres."

Any potato grower who has reason to believe that his farm allotment has not been properly determined and can offer facts to substantiate his claim, may file an appeal with the County PMA committee for reconsideration.

Such appeal must be filed within 15 days after the notice of allotment is mailed from the county office. All appeals must be filed with the County PMA committee.

WINTER DEER LOSS LIGHT

Less than one per cent of the Lower Peninsular deer herd was starved through winter and spring starvation, the Conservation Department reports after conducting final organized searches.

Due to the later winter break-up, the Upper Peninsula final search has not been made by district game managers but evidence to date indicates relatively light losses.

In the Mio district, normally critical in bad years, only 50 starved deer were located or about one for every six man hours of searching there. Largest concentrated losses were noted on the Hanson refuge, Crawford County. Besides the 22 animals found at Hanson, 20 were spotted in the "hunt club" area in Alcona and Oscoda Counties.

Searches covered key areas in all districts where winter deer food shortages usually occur.

Aiding game managers in the searches were conservation officers, other department personnel, 4-H Club members, high school students and local sportsmen.

"Well," the old timber-lover said, "there's a lot of feller's try to tell you life is just a Comedy, but the funniest thing that happened in Bonnie Parkers bunkhouse as Johnny an' me stood up to let ourselves be examined for marks of a fight, the little deputy stood back smilin', an' big Zeke Thorne was just about blowin' his top, was over at the cookshanty the horn blowed for dinner, an' not a man even made a break for the washroom."

The real comedy of life, if you ask me, is that a few loudmouthed schemers can bring to nought the work of honest men, an' bring sorrow an' grief to so many innocent people. The hunchback boy had overplayed his hand in claimin' that we'd been in a fight with Bonnie, an' he had us down pound-in us, Holy Smoke, when Bonnie knocked a man down he stayed down. "I won't pinch these men on the evidence as it stands," the little deputy said, an' the men nodded approval. "We better go eat," somebody said, an' that got approval too.

There was some rigs up in front of Bonnie's house as we went to the cookshanty, neighbors payin' their respects to Bonnie an' his family. I didn't like to look up just like that, but I happened, but there was that little knot of people, an' smoke risin' from the roll-ways. There was also the roofs of settler's houses showin' here an' there in the slash, a dog barkin' at the crowd of a rooster, an' squares of uncut pine an' hardwood to make up a peaceful scene in a new country where men was tryin' to get a start. Men that was willin' to work hard, an' families willin' to scrape through somehow till they could do better. An' over all a friendliness that made a man's heart feel good. Then there was men like Zeke Thorne an' George Jenks, dirty stinkers who'd steal the pennies off a dead man's eyes. They'd got rich through their skulduggery, but was still at it, an' woe be unto anybody got in their way. Looked to me right then like I'd got in their way, so they'd set a trap an' Johnnie an' me was in it, an' they'd still try to get the kill. I couldn't get anything out of Johnnie, he was silent like always, feelin' he was neither Indian nor White, that somehow he didn't belong, 'ceptin' among his very best friends.

"Wasn't a better man any place you put 'im though, nor a truer friend. When we come out of the cookshanty, a knot of men was gathered round where the barn boss was hookin' up the team Zeke Thorne an' George Jenks drove in. I didn't see that man an' beast must eat, they'd been unhooked an' put in the barn soon as they come in."

"You fellers ain't goin' no place," the long geared lumberjack that stopped Johnnie an' me that mornin', said to Zeke an' George, "there's dirty work to be accounted for, an' we want to hear what you know about it." I found out the man was Bonnie's foreman, an' was called "Clackey" Mile.

From what I'd found out, callin' him Clackey, was like callin' a fat man "slim" or a tall man "shorty." He was 'bout as talkative as an ostrich. But he was facin' Zeke Thorne the one time "Bull o-the-woods," an' the "Big-shot from Headquarters was blue in the face."

Next week continuing Bunkhouse Justice.
